

TROOPS FROM CUBA
OVER IN STORMInspiring Scene Presented by Regulars Leaving Camp for Parade.

Presenting a picture that would be an inspiration to a Remington or any other military artist, the troops of the Army of Cuban Pacification, the Fifth Infantry, the Eleventh Infantry, the Eleventh Cavalry, the Fifteenth Cavalry, and the Second Field Artillery, with two mountain batteries, fresh from the balmy tropic climate of the Island Republic, shivered in the biting cold at St. Asaph's, Va., this morning.

Many of the men are practically all quartered in Pullman cars. Southern tourist sleeping cars, and it was late in the night before they had these cars heated. Detachments from all the organizations were quartered in shelter tents at the old race track corral, but these abandoned their position early in the night, and bunked in with the horses.

The storm at St. Asaph's where these troops fresh from the tropics are quartered, was terrific this morning. The wind was strong enough to tear limbs from trees, and to carry away the shelter tents. It is estimated that the wind is blowing a gale of from thirty to fifty miles an hour, and the wind and cold storm is telling on troops and horses.

The men were more fortunate, however, than some of the volunteer organizations. Owing to the excellent army discipline and organization, these troops were fully prepared to meet the situation, and although shivering they are not suffering to an appreciable extent. The mess kitchens turned out a hot breakfast in the morning, and the men went about in fairly good spirits, saddling up for the turnout.

It was the first snow that men and horses had seen in years, and the horses always keyed up to nervous tension, were in phrase of impatient troopers, "gone crazy." They could not be kept still for a second, and they snorted first with cold and impatience to move, and then with the delight of it.

As wind and storm-blown horses and men gathered for the start in Washington they made a picture that will be a lasting impression on the memory of every person who saw them. Horses with wind-blown mane, standing with haunches down and ears laid back, looked like some famous canvas of war scenes or of the Cavalry in the plains. When they went to the corral this morning the men wore their service uniform, and as they were mounted, horses stamping and rearing in protest, and each of the corral detachments with one or two unmanageable lead horses, and the storm-swept Virginia Hills as a background, it was a real war scene worth going miles in the storm to see.

The men had their service overcoats, and hardened by their years of active service, they did not mind the situation half as much as the civilians. When the cavalrymen were cursing and petting their horses they made unsavory comments on Washington and the inauguration. Their favorite expression was "I don't 'saver' this inauguration business."

As they crossed the highway bridge, fully mounted and equipped for service, they looked as though they were off for an active campaign.

THROUGH WITNESSES
GOVERNOR TAKE OATHChief Executive of West Virginia Inaugurated With Much Enthusiasm.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., March 4.—Governor W. F. Glascock was inaugurated at noon today in the presence of the largest throng ever present at an inauguration in West Virginia. The oath of office was administered by the Hon. Ira E. Robinson, the youngest judge on the bench of the State supreme court.

In the inaugural parade the governor, a governor-elect, and four ex-governors rode in one carriage. They were Governor-elect Glascock, Governor Dawson, and ex-governors White, Atkinson, MacCorkle, and Fleming, the latter two Democrats.

The civil ceremonies, which began at noon, were presided over by Governor Dawson. After the inauguration by Dr. Charles Kelley, of the Morgantown M. E. Church, the new governor's pastor, there were short addresses by ex-governors W. A. MacCorkle, 42, W. Atkinson, and A. B. White, followed by the inaugural address by the new governor.

LARGE BEQUESTS
LEFT TO CHARITYEmma D. Cummins' Will Offered for Probate—Miss Olga Rooseveltvelt Beneficiary.

NEW YORK, March 4.—Various philanthropies in this city share richly in bequests of Emma D. Cummins, whose will has been offered for probate in Elizabeth, L. I.

Of the personal bequests that provided for Miss Olga Roosevelt, whose father, the late Robert B. Roosevelt, was an uncle of the President, is the largest, with the exception of the interest of Stephen C. Cummins, of 50 Park avenue, in his late wife's estate. Miss Roosevelt will receive the income from $20,000 until she is twenty-one years of age, and then can claim the principal.

PLAN TO BUILD ON PARK ROAD

Arrangements are being made by Charles W. King, Jr., to start work within a few weeks upon the construction of three houses on Park road, with the object of having them completed and on the market by fall.

REVISION WANTED
AN EXTRA SESSIONGardner of Massachusetts,
Confident That Changes
Will Be Made.

The great question which is agitating the members of the House as to what will transpire during the extra session of Congress is, Will there be rule revision? A. P. Gardner, of Massachusetts, one of the foremost members of the insurgents, declares that there will be, and that when the subject again comes up for consideration the insurgents will win, and the House will revise the rules of the House.

Mr. Foster is authority for the statement that the Rules Committee will report an amendment to the present rules, making it possible for any member of the House, on the two days in the week which will be devoted to public and private bills, to call up any bill in which he is interested. Mr. Foster declares that with the amendment recently agreed upon by a majority of six votes, and with the one which he is confident will be brought in members of the House should be satisfied with the changes. He declares that there will be no confusion about giving a man recognition for the purpose of calling up his bill. "As matters stand today," said Mr. Foster today, "many members of this House are telling their constituents that they cannot call up their bills because the committee has not acted. I have assured them that I will make it possible for a member to call up his bill whether the committee has acted upon it favorably, adversely, or tabled it. Let me assure you that with that rule in effect members will not be clamorous for recognition in the masses that is generally supposed. As a matter of fact they will be careful in the future to introduce only those bills which they really want to fight for."

Mr. Gardner declares that the insurgents who will be left over augmented by the recruits who will be members of the next Congress will make possible a real and thorough rule revision, always provided that the Democrats remain firm in their determination to assist the Republican insurgents.

STRIKE QUESTION
HANGS IN BALANCEPeace or War in Coal Fields
Depends Upon Forthcoming Conference.

NEW YORK, March 4.—Whether there will be peace or war in the hard coal district of Pennsylvania will be determined at a series of conferences to be held during the next few days between the mine operators and the officials of the United Mine Workers in the office of President Baer, of the Reading system. President Lewis, of the union, and its executive board are expected to arrive here today, when the matter of renewing the agreement under which the miners have been working will be taken up.

With both sides professing to be hopeful that a basis of agreement will be reached, it is admitted that the action of the operators in rejecting in toto all of the miners' demands before they had been even officially presented, has complicated the situation. The miners declare that not only was it discourteous, but that it showed a desire to prejudice the situation.

None of the big operators would talk today, as they prefer to await developments, but they are a unit in declaring that they have never been quite as well fixed to handle a strike. The union officials, however, declared that they had 25 per cent more men than they had on hand three years ago, when the officials of the union admitted a strike could be suicidal, owing to the preparedness of the owners.

Although no warlike steps have been taken by either side, the National Civic Federation is preparing to tender its services to both sides in an effort to keep peace.

TAKE THEIR TURN
AT GOVERNORSHIPRhode Island Lawmakers Pass
Honor Around as Pothier
Is Away.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., March 4.—Rhode Island had three governors within thirty-nine minutes and, until Governor Pothier's return from Washington may have a different governor each day. Governor Pothier left the State at eight minutes after 11 o'clock on Tuesday for the Taft inauguration.

He was accompanied by Secretary of State Bennett, who would have been acting governor, as the lieutenant governor is also out of the State. By a ruling of the attorney general, who accompanies the official party, Assistant Secretary of State J. Fred Parker was acting governor until the Senate.

Mr. Pothier is to resign and allow Senator Wilbur, of Little Compton, to have the honor. The resignations and elevations may continue until Governor Pothier's return.
